

The fascinating
INDIAN ROOM
- - - will make you a collector

Here you may wander leisurely among hundreds of interesting examples of Indian craftsmanship . . . finely-woven baskets from the nearby Hopi villages . . . beautifully decorated pottery from the distant Rio Grande pueblos . . . colorful blankets from the Navajo reservations beyond the Painted Desert.

The friendly COFFEE ROOM
- - - and tempting Fred Harvey Food

Can you imagine anything but a friendly atmosphere in this quaintly inviting room, with its log beams and rough plaster walls? At one end is a screened terrace decorated in Mexican style, for outdoor dining during the summer months. Food and service are by Fred Harvey, of course, and the prices are most reasonable.

EL TOVAR HOTEL

... famous among travelers the world over

For a third of a century El Tovar has stood in picturesque silhouette against the Canyon's rim . . . internationally renowned for its Fred Harvey cuisine and service and for its distinguished and cosmopolitan clientele.

The hotel is a long, low rambling structure of native boulders and pine logs, with more than 80 guest rooms.

Here in the lobby, amidst quiet and peaceful surroundings, you may wander through the Art Room with its many fine paintings . . . or in the evening listen to an illustrated lecture on the Canyon. Or, as many are ready to do at the end of a strenuous day, just relax and review the many thrilling experiences you have had with your friends and newly made acquaintances.
